Description of Plan Benefits & Investment Fund Information

Introduction

The Electrical Workers' HRA is a tax-free health reimbursement arrangement (HRA) that enables your employer to make contributions into a trust account on your behalf. Your account can then be used to reimburse eligible out-of-pocket health care costs and premiums for you, your legal spouse, and your qualified children and dependents.

Electrical Workers' HRA accounts are considered to be "integrated" with your qualified group health plan coverage. The plan is available to IBEW staff, IBEW union members, and other eligible non-union employees.

The Electrical Workers' HRA is offered by a non-profit voluntary employees' beneficiary association (VEBA) trust. The trust is governed by an eight-member board of trustees. Four trustees represent union members and are appointed by participating IBEW locals; the other four trustees are appointed by NECA to represent employers.

Contributions, earnings, and reimbursements (claims) are not required to be reported on Form W-2 from your employer and you will not receive a Form 1099 for any earnings or withdrawals (claims). You may invest your account among the available investment funds. Unused funds in your account carry over from year to year.

Availability of Summary Health Information

As a participant in the Electrical Workers' HRA Plan, the benefits available to you under the Plan, as well as any limitations, are important. To help you understand the types of benefits provided and any applicable limitations, the Plan makes available a Summary Plan Description (SPD) and a Summary of Benefits and Coverage (SBC), which summarize important information about your account. The SPD is written to address specific information about your Plan, including Plan benefits, how to utilize your participant account, and your rights as a Electrical Workers' HRA participant. The SBC is required by federal regulation including the format and content, and is designed to apply to health insurance plans. Your Electrical Workers' HRA account is not a health insurance plan. Therefore, the SBC indicates that some of the information and defined terms are not applicable to Electrical Workers' HRA account(s). The SPD and SBC are both available online or by logging in to your account at: www.ewhra.rehnonline.com. Paper copies are also available upon request, free of charge, by calling 1-800-832-2101.

Contributions

Tax-free contributions to your Electrical Workers' HRA account are made by your employer.

Union Employees

Negotiated employer contributions for union members are set through bargaining and may be based upon the union member's classification. Union members with questions should consult their collective bargaining agreement or contact their union representative.

Non-union Employees

If you are a non-union employee, contribution methods and amounts are typically defined by employer policy. Non-union employees should contact their employee benefits office for eligibility and contribution details.

Description of Plan Benefits & Investment Fund Information

You can self-direct the investment of your account among any one or more of the eight funds, and you can change your fund selection once per calendar month. If no investment choice is received by TPA service provider, contributions received on your behalf will be invested in a default investment.*

More investment information can be found later in this document. Please read this information carefully and consult with your personal financial advisor before making an investment decision. The Trustees, your employer, your bargaining representatives, and the agents of each do not give investment advice.

Net investment earnings (or losses) after fund management and trust administrative expenses have been deducted are credited tax-free to your account on a monthly basis.

Claims

Claims submitted for you, your legal spouse, and your qualified children and dependents must be for eligible expenses and premiums incurred after your account is opened. More detail on eligible dependents can be found online at www.ewhra.rehnonline.com.

Before submitting claims, a completed and signed Membership Enrollment Form must be on file with the TPA service provider.

Simply mail, e-mail, or fax a completed Claim Form to the TPA service provider. You will need to include proof of your expense such as a detailed receipt or an Explanation of Benefits (EOB) from your insurance provider.

Automatic reimbursement of your monthly qualified insurance premiums is available. Just submit a completed Automatic Premium Reimbursement Form.

If you or your legal spouse have a Section 125 health care flexible spending account (FSA), you must use up the FSA benefits before submitting an eligible HRA claim.

Qualified Expenses & Premiums

Common qualified expenses include co-pays, coinsurance, deductibles, prescriptions, etc. Eligible insurance premiums include medical, dental, vision, and long-term care (tax-qualified, subject to IRS limits).

Medicare Part B, Medicare Part D, and Medicare supplement plan premiums are also eligible. A more detailed list can be found online at www.ewhra.rehnonline.com.

Insurance premiums paid by an employer or deducted pre-tax through a Section 125 cafeteria plan, are not eligible for reimbursement.

Coordination with HSAs and Medicare

Health savings accounts (HSAs): You can have an HRA and an HSA, and you can use either your HRA (if claims-eligible) or HSA to reimburse your qualified expenses (no ordering rules). But, if you have a claims-eligible HRA and want to become eligible to make or receive contributions to an HSA, you must elect "limited purpose" Electrical Workers' HRA plan coverage. Only certain dental, vision, and orthodontia expenses are covered while coverage is limited. You can switch your Electrical Workers' HRA account back to full coverage after you stop making or receiving HSA contributions (certain limitations may apply). Login to your account online at www.ewhra.rehnonline.com to learn more.

Medicare: Medicare is generally primary to your claims-eligible Electrical Workers' HRA account if you are retired or separated from the employer that made (or is making) contributions to your HRA account. If you are still working, your Electrical Workers' HRA is generally primary to Medicare unless you have elected limited purpose Electrical Workers' HRA Plan coverage. Go online to www.ewhra.rehnonline.com to learn more.

Premium Tax Credit

If you purchase insurance through a marketplace exchange and want to qualify for the Premium Tax Credit, you should (1) read the Facts About Premium Tax Credit Eligibility handout available online at www.ewhra.rehnonline.com and (2) consider whether you will need to first use up, limit, or waive your Electrical Workers' HRA Plan benefits.

Account Statements

You will be sent a statement of your account activity twice a year, in January and July. E-statements are also available after logging into your account online.

Plan Expenses

Expenses of operating the Electrical Workers' HRA are paid by a per account fee of $2.00/month, plus an annual asset-based fee of approximately 1.25%. The annual fee is paid by a reduction to investment earnings or, if there are no earnings, charged as a deduction to participant accounts.

Plan operating and administrative expenses include claims processing, account administration, legal fees, consulting, printing, postage, auditing, etc.

Survivor Benefits

If you pass away, remaining funds in your account may continue to be used by your surviving legal spouse and qualified children and dependent(s) to reimburse eligible healthcare expenses and premiums. If you have no surviving legal spouse or qualified dependent(s), the executor or administrator of the estate may file claims for eligible expenses. Thereafter, any funds remaining in your account will forfeit to the plan and be used to reduce operating expenses, thus benefitting the remaining participants. Funds may not go back to the employer.

Important Investment Guidelines

The following information is very helpful when making your investment selection. Please read and consider it carefully.

Asset Allocation Strategy

Before making your investment decision, define your asset allocation strategy. An asset allocation strategy is choosing the right blend of asset classes for your financial situation. A proper asset allocation strategy can help reduce risk and increase potential return over time.

Determining what kind of investor you are will help you define your asset allocation strategy. In other words, are you most interested in growing your account or preserving your account? If you are most interested in growing your account, you must be willing to tolerate more risk and accept potentially large fluctuations in value. Preserving your account generally involves less risk and should result in smaller fluctuations in value.

Time Horizon

Your time horizon is the number of years you have to invest, or the length of time until you think you will file claims. Investors with longer time horizons are often willing to tolerate more risk; investors with shorter time horizons tolerate less risk.

Time is very important when determining your asset allocation strategy. Investments may increase in value over time assisted by the power of compounding, and time can help smooth the ups and downs of the financial market. Your asset allocation strategy should depend heavily on how much time you have until you will begin filing claims.

Description of Plan Benefits & Investment Fund Information

Managing Risk

Risk is generally thought of as the possibility of losing money on investments. If your investments' value fluctuates significantly down and up, and you make a withdrawal for a qualified medical expense during a down market investment period, you may experience loss. You also need to consider inflation risk, the chance that your investments will not earn enough to keep pace with the rising cost of living, in this case, increasing health care costs. Consider the following general principles about risk:

- Reducing one type of risk generally requires you take on more of another
- The higher the risk, the higher the potential for reward and vice versa
- The shorter the time frame you have for investing, the more you should reduce investment risk

Asset classes come in three general types: stocks, bonds, and short-term investments (money market fund). Your overall investment strategy will help you determine what percentage you should allocate to each asset class.

You know the old saying, "Don't put all your eggs in one basket"? With investing, this is called diversification. It's the process of spreading your money among different asset classes. In addition, mutual funds are diversified and if you invest your money in a stock mutual fund, you will hold stock in many different companies. Even if a few companies perform poorly, their losses may be offset by stocks that perform well.

Asset Allocation

Choosing the right combination of investments for your portfolio is called asset allocation. This is an important step that can help you reach your retirement goals. When you allocate your assets, you spread your savings out among money market, bond, and stock investments, but not in random amounts. Aggressive investors with long-term goals may prefer portfolios with more stocks, while more conservative investors are likely to use more money market and bonds. As you build your investment portfolio, consider your personal situation. Your decisions should be based on:

- When you will begin to file claims
- The amount of time you have to reach your goal
- Your own tolerance for risk
- Your other savings and investments

Over time, some of your investment fund selections may grow more quickly than others, some may even lose value, causing your portfolio to become out of alignment with your original allocation percentages. Rebalancing will occur automatically to maintain your allocation percentages.

Keep in mind that the use of asset allocation or diversification as part of an investment strategy does not guarantee a profit or guarantee against a loss.

Funds are not FDIC insured, are not guaranteed by a bank, and may lose value. Even the most conservative investment fund option may lose value.

You can find more information and performance results on the quarterly Investment Fund Overview inside this kit or online at www.ewhra.rehnonline.com.

Contributions received by the 25th of the month are held in a short-term investment fund (STIF) until the first business day of the following month, and then allocated per the participant's current investment fund allocation election on file with the TPA service provider. If no investment fund allocation election is on file, funds will be allocated to a default investment fund.

Other Important Information

You may transfer among the investment funds monthly. Participants can make fund transfer requests online at www.ewhra.rehnonline.com or by submitting a completed and signed Account Change Form to the TPA service provider. Transfer requests received by the 25th of a given month will become effective on the first business day of the following month. If more than one transfer request is received during the month, only the most recent will be processed.

If your account is allocated among multiple investment funds, withdrawals (claims) will be made proportionately based on your current account balance in each fund, unless you request otherwise.

The Goldman Sachs Gov't Money Market Fund is the most conservative fund and is invested in high-quality, short-term money market instruments, including certificates of deposit, bankers acceptances, commercial paper, and other money market securities.

Should your investment objectives change, you should reevaluate your fund selection(s) and make appropriate changes. Remember, any investment that contains stock market investments entails the risk of loss.

We must stress that investment returns, particularly over shorter time horizons, are highly dependent on trends in various investment markets. Thus, investing in stocks and bonds is used primarily as a longer-term strategy and should not be used by participants who will begin filing claims immediately.

Fund management expenses vary from fund to fund. The fund manager expense for each investment fund can be found on the quarterly Investment Fund Overview inside this kit, online at www.ewhra.rehnonline.com, or by visiting each fund's respective website.
